

June 30, 2026

Greetings!

Summer Reading is underway and there are activities to enjoy and badges to earn!

You can accomplish both by attending some of our great offerings such as "Flight of Remembrance Part II," where Marina Kirsch will be joining us once again and completing the story of her family's journey to the United States in the wake of WWII. Or, come on Monday the 6th to "Bits and Bytes Computer Literacy" at 11am, going over basic phone literacy. There is also the monthly meeting of "Writing Wizards" at 4pm, giving you a chance to share your work. We also have the mystery book discussion for "Fortune Favors the Dead" by Stephen Spotswood at 5pm.

Independence Day is this weekend and the library will be closed both Friday, July 3rd and Saturday, July 4th for the holiday. We hope to see you throughout the month for more Summer Reading fun!

Nature Corner: The Pollen Buffet

By Wendy Oellers-Fulmer

One morning, the shoreline outside our camp was covered with a thick yellow layer of pollen. As a mother Black Duck led her family into the shallows, the ducklings immediately began poking their bills into the floating slick, appearing to feast on the pollen itself.

In researching this unusual phenomenon, we learned that we were actually witnessing a form of feeding called dabbling or filter feeding. The ducklings were most likely seeking the microscopic aquatic insects and other protein-rich organisms. At this stage of development, ducklings are insectivores and need a great deal of protein.

The pollen forms a sticky layer that creates a literal duckling buffet. On the menu, insect larvae and pupae, water striders, mites, aphids, mayflies, midges and micro-crustaceans.

While it appeared that they were drinking the pollen water, they rarely swallow it. Inside the ducklings' bills are tiny, comb-like structures called lamellae. The ducklings pull the thickened water into their mouths and use their tongues to push it out through the sides. The lamellae are sieves, trapping the bugs and seeds inside. Ultimately, they will digest some of the pollen which is vitamin rich, but their main target is the prey trapped within it.....a hidden buffet for growing ducklings.

Did you know...about the storywalk? While the seasonal storywalks are a treat in and of themselves, we have one that is up at the GES Nature Trail for the summer. The book that graces the trail is Summer Solstice Wish by Kate Allen Fox, with beautiful art and a fun story, it's a real treat to enjoy on your walk. Be sure to wear sensible shoes as the trail has a couple muddy spots right now.
